

Newer Technology and Nursing Importance In Patient Care

Yaga Jeyanthi. M

MGR Medical University, India

Short Communication

ABSTRACT

New technology is changing the way we live our lives every day. It is found that 82% agree that new technology and equipment innovation will positively impact patient care. The nursing profession finds many of these new medical technologies help them with routine processes, and can decrease human mistakes and errors that can come from too few nurses, working long hours, with too many patients. While technological advancements aren't a cure-all as healthcare solutions, new technology is changing the way nurses work in positive ways.

Being a nurse is a highly demanding but genuinely fulfilling job with the chance to touch many people's lives. This hasn't been highlighted better than during the COVID-19 pandemic. When the whole world is stricken by fear and uncertainty, with many under lockdown 2.0, nurses are actively in the front line assisting patients and physicians.

This presentation aims to explain the recent technologies used in nursing practice and empower the staff nurses in the field of nursing practice. This also aims to orient nurses about the newer technologies practiced in various countries. As the nursing profession requires the core of what makes us human – paying attention, being empathetic and caring -, it will never be replaced by technology.

Biography

Prof. Yaga Jeyanthi.M is a Registered Nurse and Midwife in the state of Tamil Nadu, India. She completed her M.Sc(N)-specialised in Community Health Nursing under Tamil Nadu Dr.MGR Medical University and she is Graduated in M.Sc(Psychology) in Madras University (Distance Education). she also a completed Post Graduate Diploma Course in Guidance and Counselling (PGDCGC) in Annmalai University (Distance Education), Tamil Nadu State. She is expert in teaching theory and training students in the field of Community Health Nursing. She published many research papers in National and International Journals.

Citation: Yaga Jeyanthi. M; Newer Technology and Nursing Importance In Patient Care; Webinar on Medical Nursing; May 28, 2021